

GABRIEL DUMONT INSTITUTE OF NATIVE STUDIES AND APPLIED RESEARCH

Call for Photographs

In May 2003, the Gabriel Dumont Institute (GDI), a Métis educational institution and book publisher, launched The Virtual Museum of Métis History and Culture (www.metismuseum.ca). The most popular aspect of the Virtual Museum is our image collection found in the Our Proud Heritage section. While the historical/family images that are on the site are impressive, GDI, however, is really interested in expanding our online photo collection.

If you'd like to have your family's heritage put on the Virtual Museum, GDI will do this for you. We'll pay to have the photographs reproduced and will have them scanned and put online as soon as possible. Once the photographs have been reproduced, we will return the originals to you promptly.

Finally, we are also interested in expanding our online collection of Métis artifacts. If you have any artifacts such as beadwork or moccasins et cetera that you'd like to have GDI photograph and put on the Virtual Museum, we'd also appreciate hearing from you.
